The Last Word

We are on the eve of great events. The past eighteen months have been charactershameful mismanagement. We will not attempt to detail the blunders, the outrages, or the profligacy committed under the guise of fealty to the Government. Bad men have wormed themselves into places of publie trust and betrayed the People. Too much sway to a gang of fanatics has sunk the Republic in a sea of corruption. In any nation there must be a regulating balance of power in order to prevent the foulest fraud.

The last Congress was owned and ruled by the wildest fanatics-by men who bent sented the Balger State the greater part of their every effort for personal aggrandizement, when the great heart of the Government was throbbing a funeral knell to Con- ry to his wishes; that he has said, if electatitutional Liberty. Like Nero, they fid. ed he could not accept; and that it is a dled when the Union was being destroyed. What eared they for the happiness and dorse Doolittle's radicalism, they will vote prosperity of a great people so long as they for Mr. Myers. He was looking in vain for Constitutional advisers-for Statesmen whose minds were not contracted into narrowminded sectionalism, but who would exert thunder tones and with a united voice, their utmost powers for "the greatest good speak for Dr. Bynon Douglas! to the greatest number." He demanded, and still demands, warm friends of the Union, who would be honest, firm and thor oughly conservative.
